MERCURY AT 6, LOWEST MARK DURING WINTER

Circleville, Other Central Ohio Districts Shiver In Frigid Weather

NO RELIEF EXPECTED

Highway Department Lists Road Conditions In Various Areas

Circleville and Pickaway County residents shivered Wednesday as temperatures dropped to six degrees, low for the present winter. Wednesday morning's low was three degrees under that of December 2 when the mercury dropped to nine and four degrees below Tuesday's low reading of ten. High Tuesday was 28, according to Miss Abbe Mills Clarke, local weather observer.

No relief from the cold wave was seen by forecasters Wednesday, who predicted that it would stay cloudy and cold Wednesday night and Thursday.

Central Ohio apparently was the coldest spot this morning. In Columbus, the thermometer went down to the six-degree mark, the same as at Dayton. East Liverpool, Akron and Hayesville reported readings of seven degrees; Cambridge, eight; Cleveland, nine and Cincinnati 11.

The state highway department, which reported temperatures ranging from zero to 16 degrees throughout the state, said there were light snow flurries in the vicinity of Cleveland, Oak Harbor, Akron, Urbana, Youngstown, Ash-tabula, Marion and Columbus.

Highways in the vicinity of Ash-tabula, Ravenna, Akron and Canton were reported slippery due to snow and ice. A majority of roads in other sections of the state were slippery in spots.

By International News Service. The North Central States were held for the second day today in the grip of extreme cold, while other weather extremes in the nation included higher than normal temperatures in the far west and southwest and heavy snows in New York state.

Lowest temperature reported in the Midwest cold belt was 27 degrees below zero at Bemidji, Minn., and Devil's Lake, N. D., with other readings including 10 below at La Crosse, Wis., and nine below at Charles City, Iowa. The mercury plummeted to 10 below in some Chicago suburbs, but the lowest in metropolitan Chicago was three degrees below, with no lower than -6 predicted.

In New York state, a number of country schools were closed because of heavy snowfall, and some rural schools also were suspended in Wisconsin due to impassable drifts on side roads.

By contrast, Los Angeles basked in 68-degree temperature; Yuma, Arizona, reported 74 degrees; it was 72 at Abilene, Texas, and 71 at Shreveport, La.

Coldest of all were Canada's plains. Winnipeg, Manitoba, reported 30 degrees below zero during the night, with the mercury expected to go no higher than -7 during the day.

Nazis Kidnap Ex-Holland Premier, But Fail to Gain British Military Secrets

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Victim of a bizarre aerial kidnap plot, 78-year-old former Premier Dirk Van De Geer of Holland has been imprisoned at Stuttgart because he refused to reveal British military secrets to the Nazis, the London Daily Mirror said today.

Previously branded a traitor by the London Dutch government-in-exile, the gray-haired old man was "snatched" from Lisbon when en route from England to the Dutch East Indies via the United States early this month, the Mirror said.

According to the newspaper the plot began to unfold when De Geer in London received a report that the health of his wife in Holland was failing and that German authorities would not permit her to leave.

Working regarding his wife, the former premier received permission to leave for the Orient. On reaching Lisbon, the Mirror continued, De Geer chartered a plane which was supposed to take him to Holland. Instead, however, he was flown direct to Germany and confronted with demands for information about Britain and the Netherlands East Indies, the report said.

According to the Mirror the Nazis picked on De Geer in the belief he would prove too old to withstand their threats.

"But they were mistaken," said the paper. "De Geer courageously refused to talk. Consequently he was flung into jail in Stuttgart."

An official Dutch spokesman in London commented:

"De Geer could never play the part of a traitor. I am sure he would refuse to be blackmailed into giving away our secrets. Threats of prison or even death would never open his mouth. It looks as though another Nazi trick has misfired."

The women victims were sewing among a group of Red Cross Relief Club members when flames trapped them late yesterday on the second floor of the Central Agency building. Mystery surrounded the death of the boy, who was found in a washroom within reach of two large windows. His body was untouched by flames.

The dead: Mrs. Eugene Herzog, 62, Mrs. Linda Zachariah, 54, Mrs. Louise McCray, 35 and Archie Colon, 8.

At the same time the department said it would send military observers to Singapore and to Batavia, Dutch East Indies.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The first time in her peacetime history the United States has more than 1,000,000 men actually under arms, enlistment officers disclosed today.

A total of 1,033,116 officers and men is divided as follows: Army, 778,000; Navy 207,510; Marine Corps, 47,606.

The summary of the three branches followed an announcement by the Army that its total alone would reach 1,002,000 by March 1, just 12 days from now.

At the same time, officials of all three services declared that housing facilities and supplies of material and clothing were keeping pace with the expanding forces.

The Army, naturally, is the fastest growing. It has risen from a mere 260,949 officers and men last summer, and defense leaders said the goal of 1,400,000 in the land forces by June 30 will be easily reached.

500,000 Conscriptees

The Army at present consists of 56,000 officers and 722,000 men. Of the men, nearly 100,000 are draftees and about 200,000 are federalized National Guardsmen.

PLASTER FALLS, HURTS M'CRADY

Police Chief Resting At Home After Accident At Dinner Table

Police Chief William McCrady received severe head cuts and slight brain concussion at noon Wednesday when a huge piece of plaster fell from the ceiling of his dining room, striking him on the head.

The piece of plaster, about four feet by six feet, falling edgewise, struck Mr. McCrady as he was sitting at the dinner table. He was reported to be resting quietly at his home following treatment by Dr. E. S. Shane.

Nearly half the ceiling loosened and fell with the same piece which struck Mr. McCrady, doing considerable damage to household goods.

WAR OVER MUSIC MAY BE ENDED IN SHORT TIME

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The board of directors of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers today voted acceptance of a consent decree which in effect ends the federal government's anti-trust suit against the organization.

Broadcast Music, Inc., ASCAP's rival, previously had settled a similar suit.

The ASCAP agreement, it was predicted, will end the radio music war which since January 1 has kept all ASCAP tunes off the three major radio networks. The terms of the decree enable broadcasters to buy ASCAP music on a blanket or on a per program basis.

E. C. Mills, ASCAP administrator, said:

"ASCAP accepts the terms and does not find them too onerous. We do so in cheerful spirit."

away County, told authorities that the Pickaway County relief department had refused to give her aid since her husband was in jail, and that the Ross County relief authorities also had rejected her on the grounds that she lived in Pickaway County. Jester was indicted by the grand jury on a chicken theft charge.

Puzzled over attempts to clear the situation, authorities finally decided to free Jester on his promise to appear before the grand jury as scheduled and to get quarters for his family and obtain employment so he can support his wife and children.

Mrs. Jester told Sheriff O. A. Maughmer of Ross County that she and her children had been made homeless when her mother, with whom she had been residing in Pickaway County, went to live with another daughter. With another child expected soon, she told the sheriff that she was in urgent need of help.

Prosecutor Lester S. Reid said that release of Jester on his own recognizance seemed to be the only practical solution to the family's difficulties.

The Army at present consists of 56,000 officers and 722,000 men. Of the men, nearly 100,000 are draftees and about 200,000 are federalized National Guardsmen.

While the guard divisions have their own quarters, the draftees so far have been filtered into existing guard and regular army units. By the middle of next month, however, the 21 replacement centers being built throughout the country will be completed and draftees will then start forming their own divisions.

In addition to calling up more draftees and the remainder of the guard, the Army has announced it will call up another 30,000 reserve officers in the next few months.

The Navy, according to latest figures, is composed of 173,356 enlisted men, 18,803 reserves on active duty, 10,850 regular officers and 4,501 reserve officers on active duty.

The Marine Corps comprises 38,615 enlisted men, 6,636 reserves on active duty, 1,618 regular officers, and 737 reserve officers on active duty.

Units Of Royal Air Force Join Legions Of Australian Soldiers; Reinforcements Are Announced By Empire As "Powerful"

JAPAN EYES MOVE AS HOSTILE

Rumors Continue Concerning Two-Fold Step By Axis Powers To Gain Domination Of Balkan And Far Eastern Danger Zones

LONDON, Feb. 19.—A message of presumably vital importance has been sent to British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden by Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka of Japan.

SINGAPORE, Feb. 19.—Crack units of the Royal Air Force flowed into Singapore today as thousands of Australian troops with full mechanized equipment took up defensive positions throughout the vital Malay Peninsula.

Official sources described the RAF reinforcements as "powerful" ones.

There was no official estimate of the personnel involved. But they brought with them many modern bombers as well as twin and single-engine fighters. Immediately on their arrival, the airmen were assigned to various undesignated areas of strategic importance.

After disembarking from their transport in the sweltering tropical heat, the heavy Australian reinforcements entrained for their various destinations. With them they took their huge supplies of mechanized equipment which arrived here with them.

(Editor's Note: Coincidentally with the arrival of the Australians at Singapore, Shanghai heard report of heavy reinforcements of the Japanese battle fleet off Saigon, French Indo-China.)

Other Ships Join

(These dispatches said major Japanese fleet units, steaming south from Formosa with full complements, possibly including large landing forces, joined other warships in the danger zone in the western gulf of Siam.)

(The London News Chronicle said the Australian force that arrived at Singapore was the largest and most powerful reinforcement of men and guns ever to arrive there. The troops disembarked from a single convoy of liners which made the voyage under protection of Australian and British naval vessels, according to this account.)

"LIBERTY HERO" NEW SOBRIQUET HURLED AT U. S.

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—"Liberty heroes" in the United States who were described as agitating against Germany because they fear a revolution among their own "suppressed people" were attacked by the German newspaper Zweifel today.

"Scoundrels and hoarders of gold themselves," the paper said, "they have barred the road to justice and prosperity which they claim must be opened."

"They have announced a struggle against Germany, but they will soon see who paves Europe's road to the future. History will sentence them, just as it sentenced the criminals of Versailles."

Other newspapers published long editorials commenting on the arguments of administration supporters. (Continued on Page Two)

NORWEGIAN FUR DEALER SMUGGLES VALUED FOX PELTS THROUGH REICH

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 19.—Thirty platinum fox furs, America's entire 1941 supply, arrived in Los Angeles today.

The pelts, the most expensive in the world, were smuggled out of Sweden at great risk by Sigurd Winsnes, Norwegian fur dealer. Once past Nazi border guards Winsnes crossed Europe and Siberia and boarded an American-bound ship in Japan.

The furs will be sold in New York. They are valued at from $1,500 to $12,000 each.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—Oscar Vitt, deposited manager of the Cleveland Indians baseball team, has been awarded a $2,500 bonus claim against the club, the office of Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis announced today.

The money has been paid through Judge Landis' office, it was announced.

The bonus, it was explained, was called for under Vitt's 1940 contract which provided that he would get extra money if the home attendance exceeded a certain figure.

Nazi Planes Flying Over Greek Areas

London Hears Rumors Of Move; Athens Declares Peace Impossible

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Press reports that German planes already are flying over Greek territory and that the Reich is bringing heavy pressure on the Athens government to make peace with Italy aroused intense interest in London today.

(Editor's Note: A dispatch from Budapest last night said Greece had formally denied it would engage in peace negotiations with Germany, acting on behalf of Italy.)

(At the same time, reports from both Belgrade and Sofia said Bulgaria and Yugoslavia are expected soon to conclude a treaty similar to the new Turko-Bulgarian non-aggression pact. The Turko-Bulgarian agreement has placed Germany in position to threaten Greece with a Nazi invasion if Athens refuses to make peace with Italy.)

Budapest yesterday said it was anticipated Germany would force a Greco-Italian peace, similar to (Continued on Page Two)

FINAL VOTE ON AID BILL NEARS

Ellender Measure Opposing Second A.E.F. Gaining Senate Strength

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The senate, beginning its third day of debate on the lease-lend bill, today heard Sen. Tom Connally (D) of Texas declare that the Western Hemisphere is in "danger-real danger"—and that this nation does not intend to let the "rattle of the sword" deter its efforts to make democracy impregnable.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Senate leaders today were reported to be planning new concessions to forces battling the lease-lend bill as sentiment for the Ellender amendment, designed to bar a second A.E.F., admittedly gained ground.

While the possibility of minimizing opposition by accepting new amendments was being considered, the senate entered its third day of debate on the "all out" British aid measure.

Sponsors of the measure again took the floor, with Sens. Connally (D) Tex., Bailey (D) N. C., Hill (D) Ala., and Murray (D) (Continued on Page Two)

50 WOMEN BRAVE FRIGID WEATHER TO PRAY FOR LEND-LEASE BILL LOSS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Approximately 50 women, calling themselves the "Mothers' Crusade Against Bill 1776" (lease-lend bill) today braved sub-freezing temperatures to kneel in front of the capitol and pray against passage of the legislation.

They began picketing the capitol early this morning, bearing American flags and singing "Hallelujah." Capitol police soon forced them to the other side of the street and it was then that they knelt in the streets and prayed.

Two of the women were arrested two days ago while picketing and were charged with disorderly conduct. The charges were subsequently dismissed.

port waterfront to welcome the Australians who disembarked by the thousands from their heavily escorted transports.

As they landed the hills surrounding the Johore Straits echoed to singing, yells and music for many hours.

Many of the soldiers were overcome by the intense heat. One towering six-foot Australian soldier remarked in his "down under" lingo:

"Malaya seems to be a bonzer place but the heat's a fair cow."

Go To Destinations

Equipped with rifles, Tommy guns and steel helmets, and carrying their full kit, the troops paraded through the streets to the nearest railroad, where they embarked for their various destinations.

With the soldiers, the transports yielded modern howitzers and field guns, medical and postal units, huge quantities of food and ammunition and other equipment. The Australians were to reinforce the already strong British, Indian and Malayan regiments stationed in the Malayan Peninsula.

LONDON, Feb. 19 — Belief that Japan may seize on reinforcement of Britain's base at Singapore as an "incident" to provoke a Far Eastern blow-up was expressed by unofficial circles in London today.

Apprehension along this line was voiced after Japanese spokesmen declared the dispatch of thousands of Australian troops to Singapore was not a move calculated to improve the troubled Far Eastern situation.

Many London quarters expressed the view that Japan has been waiting for some development which could be used to precipitate warfare in the Orient, and that she may leap on events at Singapore as an excuse for her long-threatened drive to the south.

Official circles, however, advanced the opinion that the British have taken a perfectly "natural" step in reinforcing Singapore's defenses, and that Japan cannot interpret it as anything but a purely defensive move.

However, the gathering Far Eastern crisis once again dominated the attention of British authorities.

Developments Noted

Two striking overnight developments were responsible for the new display of interest in the Orient:

1. Arrival of thousands of Australian troops as reinforcements at the gigantic Far Eastern British base at Singapore.

2. President Roosevelt's action in banning foreign ships and planes from various United States bases in the Pacific.

Today's headlines in British newspapers were reminiscent of those during last week's Far Eastern scare.

While there was no official news to support reports that a Far Eastern blow-up may be imminent, London resounded to ominous rumors.

Many British observers once more predicted a double stroke by the axis powers — simultaneous drives in the Balkans and in the Far East — with Japan possibly playing her role slightly in advance of the smash through the Balkans.

Japanese circles in London clearly were not pleased by the massing of Australian forces at Singapore or by the banning of foreign vessels from American bases.

ILLNESS OF REPORTER POSTPONES CHECK CASE

Illness of Court Reporter Rose Murray, 230 East Main Street, a medical patient in Mt. Carmel Hospital, Columbus, has postponed the trial of John T. White, originally scheduled to be heard Monday before a jury. Common Pleas Judge Meeker Terwilliger announced Wednesday.

White has been indicted by the grand jury on charges of having issued a $3,200 bad check on the Pickaway County Farm Bureau as payment for 156 hogs. Recently sheriff's officers returned him to the county from Lincoln, Neb., where he had served out his time on a similar charge.

Postponement of the White case leaves only one scheduled for February, that of Joseph Hill, Scioto Township, against Ray Near, also of Scioto Township. The case, scheduled for next Thursday, will be tried by the court without a jury, the litigation involving action for an accounting.

FINAL VOTE ON AID BILL NEARS

Mont., being selected to hammer home the administration's case.

Speeding up the tempo of debate—partly by refusal of administration senators to question foes of the bill at length—leaders voiced hope of reaching a final vote the middle of next week.

The conciliatory attitude of administration leaders did not, however, extend to the Ellender amendment. It was flatly rejected as unnecessary, but sponsors of the proposal hoped to write it into the bill over administration objections.

New amendments which may be accepted by administration leaders included the Lucas amendment setting up a committee composed of Democratic and Republican leaders of senate and house, and chairmen of the Foreign Relations Committees, to consult with President Roosevelt on operation of the lease-lend program.

Another amendment held likely to be accepted would specifically permit use of huge farm supplies to feed Britain and other countries. While this authority is said to be carried in the bill, an amendment was sought by "farm bloc" members as a measure of reassurance.

"There is a disposition on the part of those in charge of the bill to put in amendments to relieve apprehension," said Sen. Austin (R) Vt., who has joined administration forces.

Sen. Ellender (D) La., author of the amendment declaring that the bill does not give authority to send men to Europe, voiced hope for its adoption.

"A number of senators who are friendly to the bill have come to me and said they would support it," he said. "Of course, the President has authority under the Constitution to send men, but this would be a declaration of sentiment of congress."

Sen. Wheeler (D) Mont., opposition leader, classed the amendment as most likely of adoption. He said that it "is the strongest now," adding that there also is "considerable sentiment" for a prohibition against convoys or depleting the Navy.

U. S. PRESSES FOR FINAL SOLUTION OF LABOR STRIFE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 19—The nation's most serious strike affecting National Defense orders — at the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company plant in Milwaukee — dragged into its 30th day today with the government increasing its efforts to bring about a settlement.

Production on more than $26,000,000 worth of government orders for giant turbines for the Navy, tools needed in power industries, and other defense equipment, is being held up by the strike, called January 21 by the CIO United States Workers Union.

Sidney Hillman, co-director of the office of production management of the National Defense Commission, was reported to have taken a direct hand in attempts to settle the controversy. He was telephoned at Washington from the conference room where union and company officials were seeking to break a deadlock believed to have been caused by union insistence on a "union security" clause.

More than 9,000 workers are idle, and the company has charged that the demand for "union security" is tantamount to a demand for a closed shop. A settlement was suggested by Hillman last week end which was to have been given to the strikers for ratification, but no vote was taken when the union claimed several issues remained to be settled.

BROWDER, WIFE MISSING FROM NEW YORK HAUNTS

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—Earl R. Browder, the Communist Party leader whose four year sentence for a passport fraud violation was upheld Monday by the U. S. Supreme Court, and his wife, Irene, ordered deported to Russia, were missing from their usual haunts today.

They have not been seen since Monday at their apartment in suburban Yonkers and party officials said they have not been at the Communist headquarters in Manhattan. Their three children failed to return to their school classes after the luncheon recess yesterday.

Both Browder and Mrs. Browder are free on heavy bail and federal authorities expressed belief they will appear when required. However, two plainclothesmen have been watching the Browder home at Yonkers.

Under terms of the will Ashland College will receive $1,000, largest bequest to go outside Fayette County.

Nazi Planes Flying Over Greek Areas

that between Russia and Finland last year. It was predicted Greece would be forced to give up some of her territory while retaining her "national honor."

The London Daily Mirror said that according to latest reports from Greece, German photographic and reconnaissance planes have been flying over Greek Macedonia for the last few days — "provoking fears of invasion."

This account said the Nazi planes appear daily along the Greco-Bulgarian frontier.

London authorities declared stories that Greek resistance to Italy would "fold up" the moment Athens received a German ultimatum are "typical German propaganda."

British circles remained convinced that Turkey, despite the agreement with Bulgaria, will abide by her contractual obligations to Britain. It was stated that the Greek government places similar confidence in Turkey.

Greek quarters in London said that if Germany delivers an ultimatum to Athens, "the answer will be the same as the Greeks gave Mussolini."

In support of this contention, British sources pointed to reports from Ankara stating that shortly before signature of the Turkish-Bulgarian pact, Turkish Foreign Minister Sogru Saracoglu received the British and Greek ambassadors for long, friendly conversations.

The London Daily Express reported from Sofia that it was learned Turkey would not withdraw her forces — estimated at 700,000 men — from Thrace, despite the new agreement with Bulgaria.

According to this report, Turkey pointed out the troop concentration in Thrace is purely a precautionary measure in the event of German aggression, and is not aimed at Bulgaria.

CHINESE AID FOR GREECE

BRITISH MOVE INTO SINGAPORE

pore waterfront to welcome the Australians who disembarked by the thousands from their heavily escorted transports.

As they landed the hills surrounding the Johore Straits echoed to singing, yells and music for many hours.

Many of the soldiers were overcome by the intense heat. One towering six-foot Australian soldier remarked in his "down under" lingo:

"Malaya seems to be a bonzer place but the heat's a fair cow."

Go To Destinations

Equipped with rifles, Tommy guns and steel helmets, and carrying their full kit, the troops paraded through the streets to the nearest railroad, where they entered for their various destinations.

With the soldiers, the transports yielded modern howitzers and field guns, medical and postal units, huge quantities of food and ammunition and other equipment. The Australians were to reinforce the already strong British, Indian and Malayan regiments stationed in the Malayan Peninsula.

LONDON, Feb. 19 — Belief that Japan may seize on reinforcement of Britain's base at Singapore as an "incident" to provoke a Far Eastern blow-up was expressed by unofficial circles in London today.

Apprehension along this line was voiced after Japanese spokesmen declared the dispatch of thousands of Australian troops to Singapore was not a move calculated to improve the troubled Far Eastern situation.

Many London quarters expressed the view that Japan has been waiting for some development which could be used to precipitate warfare in the Orient, and that she may leap on events at Singapore as an excuse for her long-threatened drive to the south.

Official circles, however, advanced the opinion that the British have taken a perfectly "natural" step in reinforcing Singapore's defenses, and that Japan cannot interpret it as anything but a purely defensive move.

However, the gathering Far Eastern crisis once again dominated the attention of British authorities.

Developments Noted

Two striking overnight developments were responsible for the new display of interest in the Orient:

1. Arrival of thousands of Australian troops as reinforcements at the gigantic Far Eastern British base at Singapore.

2. President Roosevelt's action in banning foreign ships and planes from various United States bases in the Pacific.

Today's headlines in British newspapers were reminiscent of those during last week's Far Eastern scare.

While there was no official news to support reports that a Far Eastern blow-up may be imminent, London resounded to ominous rumors.

Many British observers once more predicted a double stroke by the axis powers — simultaneous drives in the Balkans and in the Far East — with Japan possibly playing her role slightly in the Balkans.

Japanese circles in London clearly were not pleased by the massing of Australian forces at Singapore or by the banning of foreign vessels from American bases.

ILLNESS OF REPORTER POSTPONES CHECK CASE

Illness of Court Reporter Rose Murray, 230 East Main Street, a medical patient in Mt. Carmel Hospital, Columbus, has postponed the trial of John T. White, originally scheduled to be heard Monday before a jury.

Common Pleas Judge Meeker Terwilliger announced Wednesday.

White has been indicted by the grand jury on charges of having issued a $3,200 bad check on the Pickaway County Farm Bureau as payment for 156 hogs. Recently sheriff's officers returned him to the county from Lincoln, Neb., where he had served out his time on a similar charge.

Postponement of the White case leaves only one scheduled for February, that of Joseph Hill, Scioto Township, against Ray Near, also of Scioto Township. The case, scheduled for next Thursday, will be tried by the court without a jury, the litigation involving action for an accounting.

FINAL VOTE ON AID BILL NEARS

Mont, being selected to hammer home the administration's case. Speeding up the tempo of debate—partly by refusal of administration senators to question foes of the bill at length—leaders voiced hope of reaching a final vote the middle of next week.

The conciliatory attitude of administration leaders did not, however, extend to the Ellender amendment. It was flatly rejected as unnecessary, but sponsors of the proposal hoped to write it into the bill over administration objections.

New amendments which may be accepted by administration leaders included the Lucas amendment setting up a committee composed of Democratic and Republican leaders of senate and house, and chairmen of the Foreign Relations Committees, to consult with President Roosevelt on operation of the lease-lend program.

Another amendment held likely to be accepted would specifically permit use of huge farm supplies to feed Britain and other countries. While this authority is said to be carried in the bill, an amendment was sought by "farm bloc" members as a measure of reassurance.

"There is a disposition on the part of those in charge of the bill to put in amendments to relieve apprehension," said Sen. Austin (R) Vt., who has joined administration forces.

Sen. Ellender (D) La., author of the amendment declaring that the bill does not give authority to send men to Europe, voiced hope for its adoption.

"A number of senators who are friendly to the bill have come to me and said they would support it," he said. "Of course, the President has authority under the Constitution to send men, but this would be a declaration of sentiment of congress."

Sen. Wheeler (D) Mont., opposition leader, classed the amendment as most likely of adoption. He said that it "is the strongest now," adding that there also is "a prohibition against convoys or depleting the Navy."

Secretary Had Served As Assistant To Several Congressmen

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 19.—Congressman H. K. Claypool today announced the resignation of his secretary, George L. Rodgers, Jr., of New Lexington. Mr. Rodgers resigned, effective March 1, to accept a position as attorney for the U. S. Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington.

Mr. Rodgers' resignation will terminate almost ten years of service with the House of Representatives during which time he has served as secretary to Congressman Claypool, former Congressman Mell G. Underwood, now federal judge, and former Congressman Peter F. Hammond.

Rodgers took his pre-legal work at Denison University and the University of Detroit. He received his law degree from Georgetown University, Washington, D. C., and was admitted to the bar of the District of Columbia in 1939.

Mr. Claypool stated that Rodgers' successor had been selected and that his name would be announced when he assumed his duties.

MARIETTA NATIVE TAKES WRIGHT FIELD COMMAND

DAYTON, Feb. 19.—Col. Lester T. Miller, a native of Marietta who boasts that he is "just a boy from the hills of southeastern Ohio," today took over the command of Wright Field, the air corps' biggest test and research center.

Colonel Miller, in effect, has held the Wright Field job since his assignment from the army general staff on June 30, 1939. The promotion merely brings the personnel setup into line with the new War Department's policy of permitting a "junior" officer, under certain circumstances, of becoming a commanding officer.

Miller previously has been listed as "administrative executive and only technically in command."

Knepper Action, Setting Up Sales Tax, Approved

COLUMBUS, Feb. 19.—The Bricker administration's financial program was well on its stormy way to enactment today following passage by the House of the Knepper bill, allocating $12,000,000 a year from retail sales tax revenues to Ohio cities in 1941 and 1942.

The bill, one of two key measures in the administration's program to aid local governments, was passed by the House after a heated battle late yesterday, in which the Democratic minority's efforts to boost the allotment to $17,900,000 met defeat.

Old wounds were opened when the House divided on sharp party lines and leaders engaged in acrimonious debate. Democrats charged that the Republican majority sought to withhold sales tax funds from local subdivisions in order to pile up an impressive state surplus to enhance Gov. Bricker's political prestige, and that increased real estate taxes would result.

Lacking strength to win the additional $5,900,000 for the cities, the Democrats, in protest, succeeded in preventing a two-thirds majority vote, necessary to pass the bill as an emergency measure, killing the clause that would have made million-dollar monthly disbursements available immediately following enactment.

New Fight Looms

Without the emergency feature, however, administration forces easily carried the bill by a vote of 73 to 58 and the bill now goes to the Senate where a further fight is in prospect, and where the embattled Democrats face the certainty of a similar defeat.

Lacking the emergency clause, the bill cannot become operative until at least 90 days after it has been enacted.

The second major city-aid measure, already passed by the Senate and on the House calendar for action today, is the Ward bill to appropriate $2,200,000 to local governments to bring to a full 50 percent the state's contribution toward 1940 relief costs.

Rep. Knepper (R-Williams) sponsor of the sales tax measure, set off the verbal fireworks on the floor of the House yesterday when he described the minority's opposition as a "perfidious scheme" concocted in caucus. He called the testimony of certain "carefully coached" witnesses who appeared at committee hearings to request the increased allotment as "revolting."

Rep. Fair (D-Holmes) countered with a charge that the "state treasury is bulging with money that does not belong to the state, but to local subdivisions." He declared that the state has an operating surplus of $6,000,000, while local governments, denied a greater share of sales tax funds, face grave financial crises.

"The sales tax was originally joined surplus . . . and the people are being robbed to make the governor a great figure nationally."

Domination Hit

Rep. Huml's assertion that representatives of subdivisions who appeared before the House finance committee to urge increased sales tax allocations, had been told that their presence in Columbus was "useless", brought a heated denial from Rep. Ballard (R-Jackson) the committee's chairman. He called the minority's opposition a "fiasco" and declared that the "Ohio Chamber of Commerce does not dominate the financial committee and neither is Huml's large city organization going to dominate it."

The debate continued for more than two hours, with Rep. Buckley (D-Mahoning) asserting that "Ohio cities are being robbed of income set up for their benefit. The rugged financial condition of the state is reflected by the ragged condition of the cities."

Rep. Houston (R-Champaign) majority floor leader, summarizing the case for the administration, said the Bricker program was designed to prevent new taxes and to effect economies in government. He charged that the cities would not now find themselves in financial difficulties if they had followed the economy pattern set by the state, and argued that any increase in sales tax allotments to subdivisions would have to be made at the expense of the state's building program.

Rep. Mason (D-Wyandot) minority floor leader, charged the Republicans with seeking to "impose the double yoke of the sales tax and increased real estate taxes" and urged his followers to reject both the emergency clause and the $12,000,000 measure itself.

Ninety-two "yes" votes would have been needed to carry the emergency clause, on which the vote stood 74 to 58, the Democrats voting solidly against it.

Not if it's One of these Four New Additions to the BUICK SPECIAL Line that Compact Automobile Bigness into Fewer Bumper-to-Bumper Inches

HERE of late the modern automobile has been giving a pretty good imitation of a man getting up in the morning.

It has stretched and s-t-r-e-t-c-h-e-d—until today you almost have to have a shoehorn to get a car of any size tucked away in the family garage.

We thought something ought to be done about that.

So today in Buick dealers' showrooms you'll see four new models, additions to the 1941 Buick SPECIAL line.

They are typical Buicks on every count—steady, tireless travelers with a big 115-hp. Buick FIREBALL straight-eight under their bonnets.

But by the simple step of compacting all this ability, goodness and value on a 118-inch wheelbase, we've trimmed inches off the over-all length—and dollars off the cost.

We're passing those dollar savings on to you, which makes three reasons for going to see these honeys now: You'll go for their ability—your wife will go for trim size and easy handling — and both will stand up and cheer for the easily-reachable price.

RODGERS, AIDE TO CLAYPOOL TAKES NEW JOB

New Lexington Man Named Attorney For Federal Commission

SUCCESSOR IS CHOSEN
Secretary Had Served As Assistant To Several Congressmen

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 19.—Congressman H. K. Claypool today announced the resignation of his secretary, George L. Rodgers, Jr., of New Lexington. Mr. Rodgers resigned, effective March 1, to accept a position as attorney for the U. S. Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington.

Mr. Rodgers' resignation will terminate almost ten years of service with the House of Representatives during which time he has served as secretary to Congressman Claypool, former Congressman Mel G. Underwood, now federal judge, and former Congressman Peter F. Hammond.

Rodgers took his pre-legal work at Denison University and the University of Detroit. He received his law degree from Georgetown University, Washington, D. C., and was admitted to the bar of the District of Columbia in 1939.

Mr. Claypool stated that Rodgers' successor had been selected and that his name would be announced when he assumed his duties.

FACING TWO WAYS

UNCLE SAM is now busy facing both east and west. He has to keep an eye on both the Atlantic and the Pacific. And though the greater danger is in Europe, he cannot take his eye off Asia. Right now our attention is very much on that region.

Unfortunately the situation requires the splitting of our sea power. The Panama Canal, strategically intended to enable us to get along with one strong, united war fleet, doesn't fully serve that purpose now. We still expect to shuttle some warships through the Canal as circumstances in either ocean demand, but we have the fleet divided into two independent units for quick action either way. The larger force is in the Pacific, based on Hawaii.

The President made a reassuring statement the other day about Japan, saying he saw no danger of an American-Japanese war. But now he asks for a huge increase in Pacific defenses. At the same time he remarks that if there were a conflict in the Pacific, it would not reduce American aid to Britain. The obvious inference is that any serious trouble in the Pacific would be a naval job, and that our navy could take care of the situation, while non-belligerent help for Britain and her free allies continued.

Japan will go as far as she dares in warlike gestures and grabbing of territory. But the naughty child knows just about how far it can go without getting into serious trouble.

Curiously enough, Britain seems to serve as a sort of barometer in this case. While British defense is successful, it seems unlikely that Japan will bother us. British defeat in Europe would be a signal for bold aggression in Asia against British and American interests.

JAIL BIRDS' EDUCATION

IT'S a little alarming to read that the "theory of flight" is going to be taught to county jail inmates in Kansas City, under the WPA educational program. For jail birds, such a course, desired by most of the prisoners, is highly suggestive.

It may be that what the prisoners will actually get, whether they realize it or not, is a course in aviation. And that's probably all right. But the second and third choices for educational work in that institution are "practical law" and "metal work." We don't quite know what to think about every prisoner becoming his own lawyer, or prisoners learning enough about metal work to make their own keys.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

JAPAN'S tone of voice, it's noticed at the state department, is becoming much milder lately, in official conversation with Washington, than it was not long ago. It's hinted now, among other things, that Admiral Kichiasaburo Nomura, Tokyo's new ambassador to the United States, shortly will propose an unequal reopening of the Jap-occupied part of China to Yankee traders. Of course, there'll be one condition attached to the offer. This condition will be that Uncle Sam mustn't interfere with the Mikado's peace-making activities between Siam and French Indo-China.

This particular sample of peace-making has been rather funny. The Siamese (or Thailanders, as it's becoming fashionable to call them) have long maintained that the French in Indo-China once grabbed a considerable slice of Siam, along the border between the two areas, and Indo-Chinese it, as their own. With France in its present state of disorganization at home, Siam deemed the time ripe to recover its lost territory and undertook to do so forcibly. France's Indo-Chinese colonial forces resisted. Ugly fighting started.

Greatly pained by so vicious an exhibition, Tokyo proffered its good offices to mediate the dispute.

NO COMPROMISE

Not wanting to compromise, the Siamese didn't like the idea. They were afraid to offend the Japs, however; so consented. The French didn't take to the notion, either, but Herr Hitler told the Vichy government that it had to acquiesce in the plan; so the French, too, submitted.

Thereupon, in the kindest way, Tokyo framed up a Siamese-Indo-Chinese armistice under the terms of which Japan gets the disputed territory—and more, too. This armistice remains to be developed into a formal, permanent treaty, but that's bound to follow unless some outside power (which will be the United States, if anybody) butts into the negotiations. To keep the United States from doing so is why Tokyo's developed its today's affability in our direction.

Our best strategists in Washington are under no delusion that the Japs think they won't clash with us ultimately, but they don't care to do so yet.

It's taken for granted that their scheme, at the moment's juncture, is to consolidate their position where they are. The place is an excellently situated spring-board for a Jap jump for the Dutch East Indies, the Philippines and maybe Australia and India. But their plan might be badly muddled by a premature clash with Uncle Samuel. They're not ready for it.

NOT IN HARMONY

It's just at this point that Tokyo's policy fails to harmonize with Herr Hitler's.

Adolf, all our state department's observers agree (and so do the London foreign office's) is exceedingly anxious to involve the United States in a fight with Japan, in order to keep us too busy in the Pacific to continue helping the British on our Atlantic side. It's reasoned that that was his main purpose in taking the Japs in as Axis partners.

It likewise is calculated that he hoped the Japs' grab in Siam and Indo-China would provoke us into hopping on 'em. That presumption is why he blackjacked the Vichy government into submitting to Jap arbitration of the Siamese-Franco-Indo-Chinese rumpus—not that he was much interested in that especial quarrel, but that he reckoned the United States would try to veto the Japs' program, that the Japs would resent it and that a Jap-American war would start forthwith.

Clearly, he didn't want Tokyo to adopt a placatory attitude toward us. He wanted us to tell the Japs that we wouldn't stand for what they were attempting; then to have them tell us to go plumb to hades; then to have us begin shooting at one another.

DEWEY WINS SUPPORT

WASHINGTON—The most important amendment to the Lease-Lend Bill was introduced in the House by Republican Representative Charles Dewey of Chicago, who was Assistant Secretary of the Treasury under Coolidge. Spurred by the Administration, it is now being taken up by wiser Democratic leaders in the Senate.

By the Dewey amendment, Britain would turn over to the U. S. A. for safe-keeping all her stocks and bonds invested in South American railroads, meat-plants, docks, electric light companies, street railways, etc.

British investments in this area are tremendous. It was the British who developed Argentina and still own a large part of it. And should Britain be defeated, nothing would give Hitler an easier and quicker excuse to flaunt the Monroe Doctrine than taking over these vast interests from the British. Then he would have an American-made excuse for landing the marines.

Important fact is that South Americans dread such a possibility and are the strongest rooters for the Dewey amendment. However, the State Department has done nothing.

SPYING ON WALLACE

An alarm came to Capitol police the other day that a pair of "suspicious characters" with opera glasses were spying on the offices of Vice President Wallace and Senator Stewart of Tennessee from a window across the street.

Captain Robert Pearce immediately dispatched two of his fleetest bluecoats, who nabbed the culprits in a rooming house opposite the Senate Office Building. But they weren't foreign agents. They were two Georgia schoolboys visiting in the Capital.

"I just wanted to get a closeup view of Vice President Wallace," confessed one.

"Shucks," deprecated the other, "give me a closeup of those pretty girls in the office next door, any time."

STOCK MARKET JITTERS

Almost every day recently the stock market has dipped one dollar, two dollars lower. Meanwhile industrial production is enjoying the biggest boom since 1917.

Insiders give two reasons for this:

1. The large number of British stocks which the traders know must be liquidated. As long as they hang over the market, prices are bound to be low.

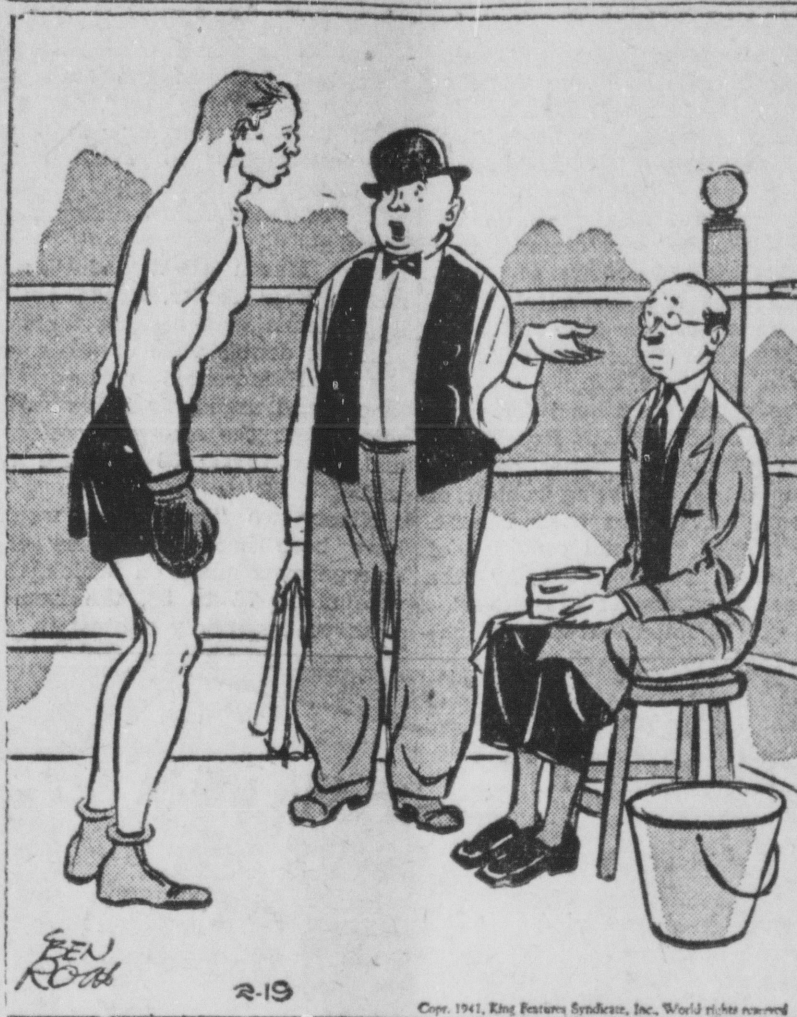

2. The imminence of the concerted Hitler attack and doubt as to what is ahead for the British Empire.

The experts have no doubt—and this view is widely held in Wall Street—that if the British Empire falls, all Europe and Africa will be in the hands of Hitler; with all Asia and possibly Australia in the hands of Japan.

This is a terrible time of year, with everybody worrying about his income tax and wishing he could muster courage to start working on it.

A Surgeon Explains Some Mysteries

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I have been trying for years to persuade publishers to commission just such a book as this is improper for laymen to read. They argue that it frightens a patient away from an operation, that the less he knows about the mystery, the better for him. I do not share this view. I take the liberal view that men are not made timorous by knowledge—they are liberated. A man has just as much right to know what is going to happen to his insides when the surgeon starts to work, as he has to know how the mechanic arranges the mechanism of his automobile. Doubtless he should trust his automobile mechanic as he should trust his surgeon. But my experience shows me that a man who understands all the mechanism of a hernia operation is not nearly as frightened about it as a man who is blindly talked into it.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

that seem so terrifying to the bystander as he sees them laid out on the operating tray. And it gives a detailed account of what the surgeon does in each one of the classical operations.

For instance, in Chapter 8, the operation for hernia is described. I know that the layman who happens to be confronted in his own person with this anatomical deviation from the normal is sorely puzzled. He doesn't understand what has happened and he resents the fact that it happened to him. And rightly so. What has happened is quite complicated. But it can be explained with patience and time because the essential thing depends merely on some changes, or weakness in normal muscular layers.

A Definite Plan
It takes the embryo surgeon himself a long time to understand it. But when he does and has had some experience he sees that the surgeons who planned to repair hernia worked out a perfectly logical and sensible method. When the modern surgeon starts to repair a hernia by operation, he has a definite and complete plan in mind—a plan which even takes into account the complications he may find—and he proceeds in his operation, step by step, exactly along the lines proposed for himself in the beginning.

Dr. Benmosché gives a clear and understandable account of this plan and of the logic of the steps. The illustrations used clarify beautifully the textual explanation. Incidentally, he discusses very sensibly the question of infection versus operation treatment of hernia.

There are similar chapters on "Removal of the Appendix," "Operations on the Gall Bladder," "Removal of the Tonsils," and, in fact, the entire field of operative surgery.

Doubtless a number of surgeons and general medical men will feel that such a book as this is improper for laymen to read. They argue that it frightens a patient away from an operation, that the less he knows about the mystery, the better for him. I do not share this view. I take the liberal view that men are not made timorous by knowledge—they are liberated. #### QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. F.: "Does sudden stopping of cigarette smoking have any ill effects on the health?"

Answer:—Certainly not. Probably improves digestion, mucous membranes of throat, and nerves.

J. F.:—"I am 19 years old and suffer from frequent nose bleeds. This causes great annoyance to me at my work as I am a telephone operator. Will you please tell me if I should have this looked into? Also will you please tell me if massaging with cocoa butter a scrawny neck and chest helps fill that region out?"

Answer:—Nose bleeds of this kind are probably due to a very simple condition in the nose, either a polyp or a small ulcer, and can be treated satisfactorily by local treatment. It is not wise to try to do this treatment oneself, but rather to seek advice from a specialist in nose and throat work who can put a speculum in the nose and see exactly where the bleeding point is. I do not believe that massaging with any fat or other material on the outside of the skin will produce localized increase in adipose tissue.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by mail. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 15 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Optimum Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

SYNOPSIS

BILL LATHAM, young novelist, has been jilted only seconds before he was to have gone to the altar. For the first time.

JOEL RANDALL, his older cousin, sees Bill's usual suavity and urbanity broken.

YESTERDAY: The cousins start to unpack their baggage from the car at their mountain cabin.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

"I'D BE WILLING to bet," said Bill, "that the Swiss family Robinson didn't have as much junk as we've got here. One would think you were planning to spend the rest of your life up here."

"Yes?" said Joel.

"Yes," said Bill. "And haven't you gotten that door open yet?"

"No. The key's bent."

"Then straighten it. We can't stand out here all night."

"Hand me that hammer."

Bill did so. And soon Joel was pounding on the bent key. As he did this, Bill walked to the edge of the clearing. He stood gazing off over the valley.

"Gosh!" he cried suddenly.

"What now?" Joel wanted to know.

"I saw a car—down on that strip of highway we can see from here."

"Well, what of it?"

"I thought you said there weren't any women for miles around."

"I did. . . . So what?"

"But there was a woman in the car. . . ."

"Your imagination working again."

"My imagination, nothing. . . . I got a quick glimpse of the car, an old-looking roadster, and I could swear a girl was driving it."

"There!" said Joel. "The key's straight at last."

Bill walked back to the cabin. There was a puzzled look upon his face.

"Maybe the mountain girls have gone in for cars this year," he said. "If so, it'll be easier for me to find a model for my heroine."

"Forget that heroine of yours," said Joel. "And give me a hand with this door. I've got it unlocked. But it seems to be stuck."

Both men pushed. The door opened.

There was a musty smell about the room beyond them—the smell of a room long shut up.

Joel walked in. He struck a match and held it up. There was a lamp upon the mantel. Joel lit it, and then turned to speak to Bill.

But Bill was standing staring at something he held in his hand.

"Well, I'll be darned!" he said. "What is it?" Joel asked.

"Look!" said Bill. He held out the object to Joel, the small something at which he had been staring.

"So this is an Eveless Eden! Like fun it is!"

It was now Joel's turn to stare. For the object Bill was holding out to him was a lipstick.

"Where in heck did you get that?" he demanded.

"I picked it up on the porch, just outside the door," said Bill. "Gosh, Joel, imagine finding anything as civilized as a lipstick up here on top of Uncle John's womanless mountain!"

"Some curious, prying tourist, probably," said Joel, anxiously.

"No, I'll bet it belongs to that girl."

"What girl?"

"That girl I heard singing."

"I don't think you heard any girl singing."

"Oh, yes, I did—the one driving the old roadster!"

"Nonsense!"

"Nonsense, my eye!" said Bill. He dropped the lipstick into his side pocket. "You know, Joel, old thing, I think I'm going to like it up here."

And, smiling, he picked up a couple of suitcases and walked into the cabin.

As one busy day followed close upon the heels of another, Bill Latham began to have his doubts about liking it there in the mountains with Joel Randall. Boy, how they worked!

The cabin had been unoccupied for over two years, and there were endless things to be done. The roof needed patching, the lean-to kitchen had lost several bricks, and the front porch floor had rotted in several places. And the dirt, dust, cobwebs and dirt-daubers' nests which had taken possession of the interior of the cabin had to be done away with.

Bill, wearing only a pair of soiled tennis slacks and beach sandals, was now down on the floor scrubbing Joel, clothed only in a pair of shorts, was standing on a makeshift ladder, scraping the remains of a dirt-dauber's nest from the ceiling.

"Listen, you," said Bill, pausing to mop his face, "who do you think you are, anyway. Joel—a Carolina Dictator?"

"Don't talk like an ass," said Joel. "We couldn't live in this place without fixing it up."

"I suppose not. But you don't have to rebuild it, and be so cock-eyed fussy about how it looks. Darned if you aren't worse than a fussy housewife."

"I like things ship-shape," said Joel. He scraped the last of the dry, pale dirt from the ceiling boards and came down the ladder.

"Uncle John and I always kept them that way. . . . Uncle John said if he had the money, he'd buy a boat, and be a captain, with me the first mate. So we used to pretend the cabin was a boat, and we'd scrub and clean like real seamen."

"You and Uncle John?" said Bill, wearily. "Darned if I can see what you two got out of working like a pair of galley slaves!" He sloshed a rag into the pail of water with a savage sort of move. "You act as though you were settling down here permanently."

"I'm going to stay at least a month," said Joel. "Unless I'm called back to the mills I brought a lot of reports from the different departments to go over—suggestions from workers, ideas that may be helpful. The Randall Mills have never had labor troubles of any sort because we've always listened to suggestions the workers make. I'm going on with it—and I may stay even longer than a month."

Bill got up. He groaned and rubbed his back.

"I'll probably have attack of housemaid's knee before you get through with me," he said.

"Quit grouching," Joel said. "I'm going to do some outside work now, while the sun's bright."

"In that get-up?"

"Why not?" said Joel. "There are no women about."

"Not? Don't forget the lipstick I found," said Bill.

"As if I could with you taking it out and looking at it every little while. For a man who's been left waiting at the church you seem strangely interested in feminine trinkets."

"I am. But only because I'm looking for an idea for my mountain story."

"Okay," said Joel. "If you're through with the floor, you might tinkle the windows. They'd let in a lot more light if they were washed."

"All right, Simon Legree," Bill replied. "But I'm going to call a halt one of these days—I'll be a one-man strike, so help me."

Joel laughed.

"Go ahead, strike," he said. "Having you marching back and forth in front of the cabin will be a nice diversion." He walked out to the porch, calling out: "I'm going to weed those collards in the garden. Maybe they'll perk up and supply us a meal or two."

Bill shrugged, but said nothing. And presently he was at work washing the windows.

Although he hadn't admitted it to Joel, working like this had been good for him. It kept him from thinking too much about what Rita had done to him. He had been a lot more humiliated and hurt than he would let anyone know. He had been quite sure that Rita was the big love of his life, since she had looked exactly like the girl he had long dreamed of marrying. Color of hair he liked, color of eyes he liked, sort of figure he liked—everything. And he had pictured Rita and himself being an ideal couple. Although he had poked fun at marriage in his writing, and although practically every yarn contained a divorce, deep down inside of himself he had harbored ideas about marriage that were downright old-fashioned. The publishers had wanted sophisticated stories, and he had given them what they wanted. But always back in his mind was the hope that he could really have Rita, marry her himself, and in his contentment write a story that would top all his other stories—one in which he could prove that a happy married life was possible, even in an age when women as a group contributed mightily little toward such a married life. He had really planned to write such a book, once he and Rita were settled down together.

And now look at him!

Washing windows in a cabin on a mountain. Rita running to the arms of someone else. His plans shot full of holes. And still some what confused about just how he was going to carry on. He began to admit that perhaps Aunt Sallie was right about Rita. But this didn't make being idle, any cozy.

FACING TWO WAYS

UNCLE SAM is now busy facing both east and west. He has to keep an eye on both the Atlantic and the Pacific. And though the greater danger is in Europe, he cannot take his eye off Asia. Right now our attention is very much on that region.

Unfortunately the situation requires the splitting of our sea power. The Panama Canal, strategically intended to enable us to get along with one strong, united war fleet, doesn't fully serve that purpose now. We still expect to shuttle some warships through the Canal as circumstances in either ocean demand, but we have the fleet divided into two independent units for quick action either way. The larger force is in the Pacific, based on Hawaii.

The President made a reassuring statement the other day about Japan, saying he saw no danger of an American-Japanese war. But now he asks for a huge increase in Pacific defenses. At the same time he remarks that if there were a conflict in the Pacific, it would not reduce American aid to Britain. The obvious inference is that any serious trouble in the Pacific would be a naval job, and that our navy could take care of the situation, while non-belligerent help for Britain and her free allies continued.

Japan will go as far as she dares in warlike gestures and grabbing of territory. But the naughty child knows just about how far it can go without getting into serious trouble.

Curiously enough, Britain seems to serve as a sort of barometer in this case. While British defense is successful, it seems unlikely that Japan will bother us. British defeat in Europe would be a signal for bold aggression in Asia against British and American interests.

JAIL BIRDS' EDUCATION

IT'S a little alarming to read that the "theory of flight" is going to be taught to county jail inmates in Kansas City, under the WPA educational program. For jail birds, such a course, desired by most of the prisoners, is highly suggestive.

It may be that what the prisoners will actually get, whether they realize it or not, is a course in aviation. And that's probably all right. But the second and third choices for educational work in that institution are "practical law" and "metal work." We don't quite know what to think about every prisoner becoming his own lawyer, or prisoners learning enough about metal work to make their own keys.

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● I have been trying for years to persuade publishers to commission just such a book as A Surgeon Explains to the Layman, by Dr. M. Benmosché, which Simon & Schuster bring out this month.

The title is completely descriptive. It explains reasonably and with good illustrations exactly what the surgeon does with each one of those shiny instruments

YESTERDAY: The cousins start to unpack their baggage from the car at their mountain cabin.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

"I'D BE WILLING to bet," said Bill, "that the Swiss family Robinson didn't have as much junk as we've got here. One would think you were planning to spend the rest of your life up here."

"Yes?" said Joel.
"Yes," said Bill. "And haven't you gotten that door open yet?"
"No. The key's bent."
"Then straighten it. We can't stand out here all night."
"Hand me that hammer."

Bill did so. And soon Joel was pounding on the bent key. As he did this, Bill walked to the edge of the clearing. He stood gazing off over the valley.

"Gosh!" he cried suddenly.
"What now?" Joel wanted to know.

"I saw a car—down on that strip of highway we can see from here."

"Well, what of it?"

"I thought you said there weren't any women for miles around."

"I did. . . . So what?"

"But there was a woman in the car. . . ."

"Your imagination working again."

"My imagination, nothing. . . . I got a quick glimpse of the car, an old-looking roadster, and I could swear a girl was driving it."

"There!" said Joel. "The key's straight at last."

Bill walked back to the cabin. There was a puzzled look upon his face.

"Maybe the mountain girls have gone in for cars this year," he said. "If so, it'll be easier for me to find a model for my heroine."

"Forget that heroine of yours," said Joel. "And give me a hand with this door. I've got it unlocked. But it seems to be stuck."

Both men pushed. The door opened.

There was a musty smell about the room beyond them—the smell of a room long shut up.

Joel walked in. He struck a match and held it up. There was a lamp upon the mantel. Joel lit it, and then turned to speak to Bill.

But Bill was standing staring at something he held in his hand.

"Well, I'll be darned!" he said. "What is it?" Joel asked.

"Look!" said Bill. He held out the object to Joel, the small something at which he had been staring.

"So this is an Eveless Eden! Like fun it is!"

It was now Joel's turn to stare. For the object Bill was holding out to him was a lipstick.

"Where in heck did you get that?" he demanded.

"I picked it up on the porch, just outside the door," said Bill. "Gosh, Joel, imagine finding anything as civilized as a lipstick up here on top of Uncle John's womanless mountain!"

"Some curious, prying tourist, probably," said Joel, anxiously.

"No, I'll bet it belongs to that girl."

"What girl?"

"That girl I heard singing."

"I don't think you heard any girl singing."

"Oh, yes. I did—the one driving the old roadster!"

"Nonsense!"

"Nonsense, my eye!" said Bill. He dropped the lipstick into his side pocket. "You know, Joel, old thing, I think I'm going to like it up here."

And, smiling, he picked up a couple of suitcases and walked into the cabin.

As one busy day followed close upon the heels of another, Bill Latham began to have his doubts about liking it there in the mountain.

The object Bill was holding out to him was a lipstick.

tains with Joel Randall. Boy, how they worked!

The cabin had been unoccupied for over two years, and there were endless things to be done. The roof needed patching, the lean-to kitchen had lost several bricks, and the front porch floor had rotted in several places. And the dirt, dust, cobwebs and dirt-daubers' nests which had taken possession of the interior of the cabin had to be done away with.

Bill, wearing only a pair of soiled tennis slacks and beach sandals, was now down on the floor scrubbing. Joel, clothed only in a pair of shorts, was standing on a makeshift ladder, scraping the remains of a dirt-dauber's nest from the ceiling.

"Listen, you," said Bill, pausing to mop his face, "who do you think you are, anyway, Joel—a Carolina Dictator?"

"Don't talk like an ass," said Joel. "We couldn't live in this place without fixing it up."

"I suppose not. But you don't have to rebuild it, and be so cock-eyed fussy about how it looks. Darned if you aren't worse than a fussy housewife."

"I like things ship-shape," said Joel. He scraped the last of the dirt, pale dirt from the ceiling boards and came down the ladder.

"Uncle John and I always kept them that way. . . . Uncle John said if he had the money, he'd buy a boat, and be a captain, with me the first mate. So we used to pretend the cabin was a boat, and we'd scrub and clean like real seamen."

"You and Uncle John?" said Bill, wearily. "Darned if I can see what you two got out of working like a pair of galley slaves!" He sloshed a rag into the pail of water with a savage sort of move. "You act as though you were settling down here permanently."

"I'm going to stay at least a month," said Joel. "Unless I'm called back to the mills I brought a lot of reports from the different departments to go over—suggestions from workers, ideas that may be helpful. The Randall Mills have never had labor troubles of any sort because we've always listened to suggestions the workers make. I'm going on with it and I may stay even longer than a month."

Bill got up. He groaned and rubbed his back.

"I'll probably have attack of housemaid's knee before you get through with me," he said.

"Quit grousing," Joel said. "I'm going to do some outside work now, while the sun's bright."

"In that get-up?"

"Why not?" said Joel. "There are no women about."

"Not? Don't forget the lipstick I found," said Bill.

"As if I could with you taking it out and looking at it every little while. For a man who's been left waiting at the church you seem strangely interested in feminine trinkets."

"I am. But only because I'm looking for an idea for my mountain story."

"Okay," said Joel. "If you're through with the floor, you might decide the windows. They'd let in a lot more light if they were washed."

"All right. Simon Legree," Bill replied. "I'm going to call a halt one of these days—I'll be a one-man strike, so help me."

Joel laughed.

"Go ahead, strike," he said. "Having you marching back and forth in front of the cabin will be a nice diversion." He walked out to the porch, calling out: "I'm going to weed those collards in the garden. Maybe they'll perk up and supply us a meal or two."

Bill shrugged, but said nothing. And presently he was at work washing the windows.

Although he hadn't admitted it to Joel, working like this had been good for him. It kept him from thinking too much about what Rita had done to him. He had been a lot more humiliated and hurt than he would let anyone know. He had been quite sure that Rita was a half one of these days—since she had looked exactly like the girl he had long dreamed of marrying. Color of hair he liked, color of eyes he liked, sort of figure he liked—everything. And he had pictured Rita and himself being an ideal couple. Although he had poked fun at marriage in his writing, and although practically every yarn contained a divorce, deep down inside of himself he had harbored ideas about marriage that were downright old-fashioned. The publishers had wanted sophisticated stories, and he had given them what they wanted. But always back in his mind was the hope that he could really have a happy marriage himself, and in his contentment write a story that would top all his other stories—one in which he could prove that a happy married life was possible, even in an age when women as a group contributed mighty little toward such a married life. He had really planned to write such a book, once he and Rita were settled down together.

And now look at him!

Washing windows in a cabin on a mountain. Rita running to the arms of someone else. His plans shot full of holes. And still some- what confused about just how he was going to carry on. He began to admit that perhaps Aunt Sallie was right about Rita. But this didn't make being little, any cozier.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

JAPAN'S tone of voice, it's noticed at the state department, is becoming much milder lately, in official conversation with Washington, than it was not long ago. It's hinted now, among other things, that Admiral Kichiasaburo Nomura, Tokyo's new ambassador to the United States, shortly will propose an unequal reopening of the Jap-occupied part of China to Yankee traders. Of course, there'll be one condition attached to the offer. This condition will be that Uncle Sam mustn't interfere with the Mikado's peace-making activities between Siam and French Indo-China.

This particular sample of peace-making has been rather funny. The Siamese (or Thailanders, as it's becoming fashionable to call them) have long maintained that the French in Indo-China once grabbed a considerable slice of Siam, along the border between the two areas, and Indo-Chinese it, as their own. With France in its present state of disorganization at home, Siam deemed the time ripe to recover its lost territory and undertook to do so forcibly. France's Indo-Chinese colonial forces resisted. Ugly fighting started.

Greatly pained by so vicious an exhibition, Tokyo proffered its good offices to mediate the dispute.

NO COMPROMISE

Not wanting to compromise, the Siamese didn't like the idea. They were afraid to offend the Japs, however; so consented. The French didn't take to the notion, either, but Herr Hitler told the Vichy government that it had to acquiesce in the plan; so the French, too, submitted.

Thereupon, in the kindest way, Tokyo framed up a Siamese-Indo-Chinese armistice under the terms of which Japan gets the disputed territory—and more, too. This armistice remains to be developed into a formal, permanent treaty, but that's bound to follow unless some outside power (which will be the United States, if anybody) butts into the negotiations. To keep the United States from doing so is why Tokyo's developed its today's affability in our direction.

Our best strategists in Washington are under no delusion that the Japs think they won't clash with us ultimately, but they don't care to do so yet.

It's taken for granted that their scheme, at the moment's juncture, is to consolidate their position where they are. The place is an excellently situated springboard for a Jap jump for the Dutch East Indies, the Philippines and maybe Australia and India. But their plan might be badly messed up by a premature clash with Uncle Samuel. They're not ready for it.

NOT IN HARMONY

It's just at this point that Tokyo's policy fails to harmonize with Herr Hitler's.

Adolf, all our state department's observers agree (and so do the London foreign office's) is exceedingly anxious to involve the United States in a fight with Japan, in order to keep us too busy in the Pacific to continue helping the British on our Atlantic side. It's reasoned that that was his main purpose in talking the Japs in as Axis partners.

It likewise is calculated that he hoped the Japs' grab in Siam and Indo-China would provoke us into hopping on 'em. That presumption is why he blackjacked the Vichy government into submitting to Jap arbitration of the Siamese-Franco-Indo-Chinese rumpus—not that he was much interested in that especial quarrel, but that he reckoned the United States would try to veto the Japs' program, that the Japs would resent it and that a Jap-American war would start forthwith.

Clearly, he didn't want Tokyo to adopt a placatory attitude toward us. He wanted us to tell the Japs that we wouldn't stand for what they were attempting; then to have them tell us to go plumb to hades; then to have us begin shooting at one another.

Mrs. E. H. Wardell
And Daughter
Hostesses

Mrs. Edward H. Wardell and her daughter, Mrs. Louis E. Drake, were joint hostesses Tuesday at a reception and shower honoring Mrs. Lloyd Wardell of Columbus, the former Dorothy Beatty of Circleville and the new daughter-in-law of Mrs. Wardell. One hundred guests were asked to meet the bride, the party of beautiful appointments being at the Wardell party home.

Many candles burned in the living room where the guests were received by Mrs. Wardell, Mrs. Drake, Mrs. Lloyd Wardell and her mother, Mrs. R. N. Beatty, of North Court Street. Mrs. H. W. Campbell of Williamsport served as assisting hostess, Mrs. Fred Grant and Miss Eleanor Dreishach of Circleville presiding at the punch bowl on the candle lighted table in one corner of the room.

A large crystal bowl of lovely spring flowers interspersed with pussy willows centered the table in the dining room where refreshments were dispensed by candle light. Mrs. Nelson Warner of Stoutsville, Miss Ann Vlerebome of Circleville and Mrs. William Dunlap of Williamsport presided at the table. Mrs. Harry McGhee, Mrs. Edward S. Anderson and Mrs. George LeMay of Williamsport assisted in the dining room.

The many beautiful shower gifts received by the honor guest were placed under a large parasol gayly decorated in red and white, with many tiny red hearts. Mrs. Wardell was seated under this festive shower arrangement while opening her packages.

During the evening, each guest wrote her favorite recipe for the bride. A flower contest proved interesting.

Music was furnished during the hours of the reception by Mrs. Gordon Rihl of Williamsport, who sang several solos, playing her own piano accompaniments. Ada Lou Lockett, Norma Jean Hines and Mary Virginia Baum of the Ashville community comprised a youthful trio furnishing many delightful instrumental and vocal numbers. Ada Lou pleased the guests also with her accordion solos.

Mrs. Harry Stevenson, Mrs. Malcolm Russell and Mrs. Frank Ferguson of Circleville assisted in various capacities during the reception.

The guest list included friends from the Circleville, Williamsport, Stoutsville, Ashville and Frankfort communities.

Both groups of the league accepted an invitation to attend the meeting of the Groveport league Wednesday, all members being requested to meet at the parish house at 7 o'clock to leave from there.

It was decided to have a series of programs during the coming

D.A.R. Conducts Annual Guest Day for Sixty

Pickaway Plains Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, entertained at a Patriotic Tea, Tuesday, in the social room of the Presbyterian Church, more than 60 members and guests being present for the annual guest day event. Mrs. Paul Johnson read a timely paper on "Washington and His Times", substituting for an out-of-town guest speaker who, at the last minute, was unable to be present. Her paper, the result of deep research, was received with much interest.

She discussed the youth and manhood of Washington's life, a subject of universal interest. She gave an interesting review of the events intimately concerned with his life, beginning with his birth and baptism, and continuing through his various experiences until his death. She showed him as a boy, strong and vigorous of body, the loss of his father at 11 being his first great sorrow. She laid the background for his successful career as a planter, business man, surveyor, soldier and great leader by telling of events in the formative years of his life and linking them with his outstanding accomplishments. She mentioned that he received his education in Virginia schools where he led in sports and was deeply interested in mathematics. Mrs. Johnson spoke of various traditions concerning his early years, and stressed the attention and respect he showed for the wishes of his mother.

She told of his love affairs and the unfounded scandals in connection with them, of his wooing of Martha Custis, his various steps of advancement to the position of the first president of the United States. Mrs. Johnson's informal discussion revealed a wide range of facts concerning Washington as a man, rather than as the almost mythical hero that most people regard him.

Mrs. C. C. Watts, regent of the chapter, was assisted in the opening ritualistic service by Mrs. Glenn L. Nickerson, chaplain, the Salute to the Flag concluding the ceremonies.

An Old English ballad, "The Nightingales of Lincoln's Inn," by Oliver, and "Let My Song Fill Your Heart," by Ernest Charles, were the two lovely solos by Miss Eleanor Snyder who responded to prolonged applause with "Ama Pola" (Pretty Little Poppy) as an encore number. Miss Abbe Mills Clarke played her piano accompaniments, and for the group singing of "America" and "The Star Spangled Banner."

Mrs. Watts called attention to the coming State conference, March 10, 11 and 12, at the Netherlands Plaza, Cincinnati.

In a pleasant informal talk, Mrs. Watts told of the aims of the D.A.R. and explained its work as civic, state, national and international.

The guests gathered around the tea table for a social half hour. Mrs. Watt and Miss Mary Barrere, chaplain of the Hillsboro D.A.R. Chapter, presided at the silver coffee and tea services. The feature of the patriotic appointments of the table was the display of many tiny flags centered with miniature figures of George and Martha Washington on an oblong mirror. Tall red candles in blue holders were at the corners. A large American flag formed the beautiful background for the table.

The hostesses included Mrs. Glenn L. Nickerson, Mrs. George Roth, Mrs. R. R. Bales, Mrs. William Mack, Miss Alice Ada May, Mrs. George Gardner, Mrs. Charles Pugsley, Mrs. Martin Cromley, Mrs. Paul Cromley, Mrs. C. D. Closson, Mrs. Emmitt L. Crist, Mrs. William T. ## Hundred Guests Invited To Reception for Bride

Mrs. E. H. Wardell
And Daughter
Hostesses

Mrs. Edward H. Wardell and her daughter, Mrs. Louis E. Drake, were joint hostesses Tuesday at a reception and shower honoring Mrs. Lloyd Wardell of Columbus, the former Dorothy Beatty of Circleville and the new daughter-in-law of Mrs. Wardell. One hundred guests were asked to meet the bride, the party of beautiful appointments being at the Wardell party home.

Many candles burned in the living room where the guests were received by Mrs. Wardell, Mrs. Drake, Mrs. Lloyd Wardell and her mother, Mrs. R. N. Beatty, of North Court Street. Mrs. H. W. Campbell of Williamsport served as assisting hostess, Mrs. Fred Grant and Miss Eleanor Dreisbach of Circleville presiding at the punch bowl on the candle lighted table in one corner of the room.

A large crystal bowl of lovely spring flowers interspersed with pussy willows centered the table in the dining room where refreshments were dispensed by candle light. Mrs. Nelson Warner of Stoutsville, Miss Ann Vreelbome of Circleville and Mrs. William Dunlap of Williamsport presided at the table. Mrs. Harry McGhee, Mrs. Edward S. Anderson and Mrs. George LeMay of Williamsport assisted in the dining room.

The many beautiful shower gifts received by the honor guest were placed under a large parasol gayly decorated in red and white, with many tiny red hearts. Mrs. Wardell was seated under this festive shower arrangement while opening her packages.

During the evening, each guest wrote her favorite recipe for the bride. A flower contest proved interesting.

Music was furnished during the hours of the reception by Mrs. Gordon Rihl of Williamsport, who sang several solos, playing her own piano accompaniments. Ada Lou Lockett, Norma Jean Hines and Mary Virginia Baum of the Asheville community comprised a youthful trio furnishing many delightful instrumental and vocal numbers. Ada Lou pleased the guests also with her accordion solos.

Mrs. Harry Stevenson, Mrs. Malcolm Russell and Mrs. Frank Ferguson of Circleville assisted in various capacities during the reception.

The guest list included friends from the Circleville, Williamsport, Stoutsville, Asheville and Frankfort communities.

D.A.R. Conducts Annual Guest Day for Sixty

Pickaway Plains Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, entertained at a Patriotic Tea, Tuesday, in the social room of the Presbyterian Church, more than 60 members and guests being present for the annual guest day event. Mrs. Paul Johnson read a timely paper on "Washington and His Times", substituting for an out-of-town guest speaker who, at the last minute, was unable to be present. Her paper, the result of deep research, was received with much interest.

She discussed the youth and manhood of Washington's life, a subject of universal interest. She gave an interesting review of the events intimately concerned with his life, beginning with his birth and baptism, and continuing through his various experiences until his death.

She showed him as a boy, strong and vigorous of body, the loss of his father at 11 being his first great sorrow. She laid the back-ground for his successful career as a planter, business man, surveyor, soldier and great leader by telling of events in the formative years of his life and linking them with his outstanding accomplishments. She mentioned that he received his education in Virginia schools where he led in sports and was deeply interested in mathematics. Mrs. Johnson spoke of various traditions concerning his early years, and stressed the attention and respect he showed for the wishes of his mother.

She told of his love affairs and the unfounded scandals in connection with them, of his wooing of Martha Custis, his various steps of advancement to the position of the first president of the United States. Mrs. Johnson's informal discussion revealed a wide range of facts concerning Washington as a man, rather than as the almost mythical hero that most people regard him.

Mrs. C. C. Watts, regent of the chapter, was assisted in the opening ritualistic service by Mrs. Glenn I. Nickerson, chaplain, the Salute to the Flag concluding the ceremonies.

An Old English ballad, "The Nightingales of Lincoln's Inn", by Oliver, and "Let My Song Fill Your Heart", by Ernest Charles, were the two lovely solos by Miss Eleanor Snyder who responded to prolonged applause with "Anna Polka" (Pretty Little Poppy) as an encore number. Miss Abbe Mills Clarke played her piano accompaniments, and for the group singing of "America" and "The Star Spangled Banner."

Mrs. Watts called attention to the coming State conference, March 10, 11 and 12, at the Netherlands Plaza, Cincinnati.

In a pleasant informal talk, Mrs. Watts told of the aims of the D.A.R. and explained its work as civic, state, national and international.

The guests gathered around the tea table for a social half hour. Mrs. Watt and Miss Mary Barrere, chaplain of the Hillsboro D.A.R. Chapter, presided at the silver coffee and tea services. The feature of the patriotic appointments of the table was the display of many tiny flags centered with miniature figures of George and Martha Washington on an oblong mirror. Tall red candles in blue holders were at the corners. A large American flag formed the beautiful background for the table.

The hostesses included Mrs. Glenn I. Nickerson, Mrs. George Roth, Mrs. R. R. Bales, Mrs. William Mack, Miss Alice Ada May, Mrs. George Gardner, Mrs. Charles Pugsley, Mrs. Martin Cromley, Mrs. Paul Cromley, Mrs. C. D. Closson, Mrs. Emmitt L. Crist, Mrs. William T. Ulm, Miss Elizabeth Black, Mrs. Essa Willis Schiear and Miss Charlotte Caldwell.

Serious Overproduction Of Wheat, Corn Probable Without Definite Allotment

Pickaway County AAA men were told at a meeting of state leaders of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in the Deshler-Wallick Hotel, Columbus, Tuesday, that marketing quotas are needed in 1941 to prevent serious overproduction of wheat and corn in Ohio.

"The defense program and increasing industrial production in this country will not solve the farmer's problem in relation to wheat and corn," Dr. Virgil Wertz, of the rural economics department of Ohio State University, told AAA officials.

ASHVILLE

Ashville, Phone 76

Abed for the last week, Clarence Squire was removed Tuesday evening from his home on East Main Street by the Schlegel ambulance to Grant Hospital, Columbus. There for observation, Emerson Squire, the son, located in New York City, will return home.

Jesse Baum, secretary of the Pickaway County Farmers' Mutual Fire Company, has been in Columbus the last couple of days attending a state meeting of Fire Mutual companies. This is property reappraisal year for this home mutual and those appointed for the job are already at it, so we were told. These appraisals are made at each 5-year period.

A half dozen hundred baby chicks passed through the local Postoffice out to their new country homes yesterday, 400 to Dan Runkle's and the others to Alton Brigner. The local hatcheries, Walter Hedges near town, and George Bowers, down on the South Road are reported as doing "a good business" in chick sales for this early in the year. These are both White Leghorn breeders.

Mrs. Jesse Kaiserman left Ashville Sunday morning with her brother Joseph Seiffman his wife and sister of Cleveland for the Southland, the objective point being New Orleans where they will attend the Winter festival, the Mardi Gras—spell it yourself. They will be gone a couple of weeks.

Gasoline to start fire with instead of cold oil these chilly mornings, he finds is really for a fact, quick acting, so Edward Hoover of Marcy territory told us yesterday. The stove lids hopped around in a big hurry and the soot all left top speed. Eyebrows went, too. But with all this, no thing or anyone was injured. He is sure it will be his lucky day. In the future he'll use coal oil, (and be sure it is) on the coals. Plenty quick for him, he thinks.

The three-deck hall game out at the school auditorium yesterday evening brought a fair attendance. The 7-8 graders won their game over the soph-freshies by an 8 to 24 score and the Alumni girls won over the high lasses by a 25-17 score. Walter Gregg got plenty defeat from the Circleville seniors over his picked ones by a 60-20 score.

The proper address of young Sherman just now at Kelly Field is: Lee Edwin Sherman, Kelly Field, Texas. Air Corps.

EVEN GOVERNOR HAS DIFFICULTY THUMBING RIDE

ATHENS, Feb. 19—Even a governor has a difficult time "thumbing" a ride. At least that was Governor Bricker's conclusions today.

When his automobile burned out a bearing six miles north of Logan while he was enroute to Athens, the Ohio governor had to wait on a bitterly cold roadside for three hours before a state highway patrol squad found him and continued him on his journey.

The governor and his party, shortly after pulling their broken automobile to the side of the road, saw a bus approaching and sought to stop it. Despite their frantic warnings, the bus zoomed right on.

Finally, the party located a telephone and notified officials of Ohio University they would be late for the school's Founders' Day celebration. The university, in turn, telephoned the governor's office in Columbus which informed the state highway patrol of what had happened. Governor Bricker was finally located by a patrol cruiser and sped to Athens.

At the University, the governor spoke to a crowd of 3,000 celebrating the 137th anniversary of the founding of the school.
